

The Royal Family and the Middleton family put up a united fashion front at the christening of Prince George at St James's Palace in London yesterday. All wore shades of chic cream or royal blue for the event with the Duchess of Cambridge, the Duchess of Cornwall, Pippa Middleton - and of course Prince George! - all sporting off-white. Zara and the Queen picked shades of navy and powder blue and Caroline Middleton wore a mixture of the two, in a navy coat and cream dress. Scroll down for video. Traditional gown: Kate Middleton coordinated her colour with that of her

